

You don't have to tell me that the economy is not great. By any reasonable standards I am well off, even, dare I say it, part of the 1%, at least for the brief moment. Anyone with any experience pursuing a career would agree that one should stay in one's chosen field, and I, at the risk of retelling my entire resume in computer development and support, still have enough know how to untangle fix and build some co